

A history of emergency and trauma

February-April 2016

From the battlefields of Europe to the industrial cities of the UK this exhibition delves into the fascinating history of emergency and trauma surgery.

Celebrating 200 years of the stethoscope

May-July 2016

A special exhibition celebrating how a simple invention in 1816 changed the way we listen to our heart.

Visiting us

Our exhibitions are open to the public on Monday afternoons 14:00-17:00 (excluding public holidays), and any other time by appointment. We provide talks and guided tours on request.

The College is fully accessible for wheelchair users and there is an easy-access toilet.

Library events are free to attend, however we do ask you to book in advance as places are subject to availability.
